The General Believes This Was Due to the Fall He Had When Wounded-He is Well Satisfied With the Medical and Surgical Attendance Provided.

HAVANA, July 2.-Gen. Ruis Rivera has been removed from the San Ambrosio hospital to the Cabanas fortress by advice of the attending surgeons.

After a consultation between the medical director of the hospital, Dr. Agustin Muniozguzen, and the head physician, Dr. Max Fernandez, Dr. Benitevaldes and other hospital physicians, it was decided to make an incision in the upper part of the liver. The operation was performed by Doctors Fernandez and Valdes, but it was not considered expedient to continue that line of treatment, and the physicians will probably confine themselves hereafter to the local applications for the patient's relief and to general therapeutic treatment. The bulletin as to the patient's condition says he is suffering from an abscess in the right side of the stomach near and above the

Gen. Rivera believes this was due to the fall he had at the time he was wounded. He attaches no importance to it, and, in fact, for some time did not notice it at all. He expresses himself as satisfied with the medical and surgical attendance provided, as well as with the nurses. All the food supplied him is excellent, his meals being served from a restaurant nearby at his own expense.

He told a newspaper correspondent that the wound had healed and that the limb had never shown any symptoms of grangrene. Naturally he suffers a good deal of anxiety on account of the abscess. Since he entered the hospital he has improved somewhat in spirits, although his general condition is very serious owing to the absence of appetite and the lack of nutrition for the general system.

It is probable that when he recovers a somewhat more radical operation will be performed, though not to the extent of a fatal danger. Gen. Rivera occupies the best room in the hospital.

"I can not expect to have a room in the palace."

TORPEDO BOATS.

A Fleet of Them Will Be Sent Up the Mississippi River as Far as Dubuque. NEW-ORLEANS, July 2.- A special from Washington to the Times Demoerat says: A fleet of ten torpedo boats will be sent up the Mississippi as far as Dubuque some time this summer. The object is to show the people in the larger cities along the river what modern boats of their class are like. None of the torpedo boats draw over six feet of water, and they can easily make the trip without much fear of being grounded. The fleet will leave Newport about July 15 and go direct to New Orleans. It will then start on its journey up the Mississippi river. The department officials also wish to discover how much hard work the boats are capable of doing, and think it is better to find out in time of peace rather than in war.

BENTONVILLE, Ark., July 2.-Thursday morning intelligence was received by a courier that James Burgin and wife, living a few miles out, were murdered in bed by being beat on the head. The deceased was a man of about 35, was married last winter and was one of the most prominent men in the county. There is no clew to the murderer. Robbery is supposed to have been the motive.

Pittsburgh Mills Close Down. PITTSBURGH, Pa., July 2.—As the result of the failure of the joint wage conference of the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel workers and manufacturers to agree upon the scale at the Youngstown conference Wednesday, all the union mills closed down Thursday and between 75,000 and 85,000 men are idle. This includes the skilled workmen and those depending on them.

Earthquake in New Brunswick. Boston, July 2.- A dispatch to the Globe from Center Harbor, N. B. says: A heavy earthquake shock visited this section about 4:20 o'clock Thursday morning. It was accompanied by a deep rumbling like a heavy clap of thunder. Buildings were shaken and many people were awakened and alarmed by the disturbance.

Judge Cooley a Hopeless Invalid. ANN ARBOR, Mich., July 2.-Judge Thomas M. YELLOW JACK.

Harrowing Story of Passengers on Board the City of Para-Three-Fourths of Them Attacked by Yellow Fever, It is

NEW YORK, July 3.-Passengers who arrived here Friday night on the steamship Allianca, tell a harrowing story of their experience aboard the Pacific mail steamer City of Para, which left Panama for San Francisco on May 23 last. It seems that two days after clearing the Isthmus yellow fever broke out among the crew and passengers of the Pacific liner which caused a panic on board and resulted in the death of the commander of the vessel, Capt. Martensen. Three-fourths of the passengers, it is said, were attacked by the disease, and at least a dozen of them found watery graves. When the vessel finally reached San Francisco the facts of the terrible voyage were suppressed and the sickness and deaths were attributed to tropical dysentery, but the passengers who came here Friday night say that the symptoms were plainly those of yellow jack. The disease was raging on the Isthmus, but when the passengers went on board the City of Para they were told by the officers that they need not have any fear. There was no effort at fumigation, and when Mrs. Capt. Mitchell, the wife of an Englishman commanding one of the vessels of the Chilian line, appeared on the City of Para heavily veiled there was no uneasiness. Three days out she died from the so-called "tropical dysentery." She was buried at sea and the next to be taken down was Capt. Martensen. Before he died the fever had spread all over the ship. In first class cabin and steerage alike the yellow death dealer went, and how many were prostrated will probably never be known. The officers suppressed every scrap of news they could, and Dr. Renz insisted on his original diagnosis. At Punta Arenas, the Echeveria family, one of the richest in Costa Rica, took passage on the City of Para, not knowing that yellow jack was raging on board. The vessel proceeded on its'voyage. Up the coast there were two or three funerals a day, and those who were not affected were panic stricken.

After much pleading a number of passengers were put ashore at Corinta and San Jose de Guatemala. It is alleged that the officers of the vessels supplied the passengers with spoiled meat, and this is believed to have added to the yellow fever's spread. At San Salvador a band came ashore and while the passengers were sick and dying the musicians gave five hour concerts daily.

A COACH LOAD

Of Christian Endeavorers Upset in the Garden of the Gods.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Col., July 3 .- A coach load of people who were being taken through the Garden of the Gods Friday were upset at the Balanced Rock and Fred W. Evanston, of Boston, was seriously hurt.

The accident was caused by overcrowding the coach. There were 16 passengers. Evanston was taken to a Manitou hotel, where a physician attended to his injuries. His face was badly cut and his hips were severely bruised and wrenched.

Evanston is a member of the Massachusetts Endeavors and was compelled to remain behind his companions, who left at noon for San Francisco. Six ladies in the coach were somewhat bruised but resumed their journey.

Missouri Coal Operators Aroused.

St. Louis, July 3.—Coal operators are aroused over the announcement that the United Mine Workers have ordered a strike for July 4, and the presidents and managers of several of the big companies having headquarters here have gone to their mines in Illinois and Missouri to look into the situation. The concensus of opinion among the operators is that the strike will be a long one, and that as a result the price of coal will advance, though not at once.

In addition 80 of the Greeks were captured and taken to Janina, the headquarters of the Turkish army in Epirus.

THE TARIFF BILL.

It is Thought There Will Be No Attempt to Oppose the Motion

To Disagree to the Senate Amendments and Send the Bill to Conference-The Number of House Conferees to Be Appointed Not Yet Decided.

WASHINGTON, July 2.-When the tariff bill reaches the house, after it has passed the senate, it is not probable that there will be any attempt to oppose the motion which will be made either directly by Chairman Dingley or by the opposition of a special order to disagree to the senate amendments and send the bill to conference. The republican leaders do not think there is any necessity for debate until the bill reported back by the conference and the democrats are inclined to the same opinion. Bailey, the leader of the minority, said Thursday that he would not oppose a motion to get the bill into conference, provide the republicans would agree to a reasonable time for debate when the bill was reported back to the house. He thought three or four days for discussion at that time would be sufficient. The number of conferees to be appointed on behalf of the house has not yet been decided, nor the political division, but the conferees, as is usual, will be the ranking members of the committee from each side. It is probable that there will be seven conferees. The political division may be five and two or four and three. The republican members of the committee in their ranking order are Dingley, Payne, Dalzell, Hopkins, Grosvenor, Russell, Bolliver, Steele, Johnson, Evans and Tanney and the democrats Bailey, McMillan, Wheeler, McLaurin, Robertson and Swanson.

The estimate of the time the bill that the conferees will report the bill | upon us." back a week from next Monday if it comes over from the senate on the lat-

The debt, independent of the cash, was reduced $4,152. The debt is recapitulated as fol-

Interest bearing debt..... $ 847,365,130 Debt bearing no interest.......... 378,081,702

Total.... $1,225,793,712 This amount, however, does not include $590,878,953 in certificates and treasury notes outstanding which are off-set by an equal amount of cash in the treasury.

The cash in the treasury is classified as follows: Gold......$178,076,656 Paper ..... 153,349,826 ances, etc...... 19,163,953

Against the above there are demand liabilities outstanding amounting to $863,251,732, leaving the net cash in the treasury, $240,137,626.

WASHINGTON, July 2.—It is understood that the president has selected W. W. Rockhill, late assistant secretary of state, for the post of United States minister to Greece and that his nomination is likely to go to the senate Saturday. Mr. Rockhill's appointment will not be a party one in any sense, but will be based entirely upon his experience as a diplomat and his ter. excellent work while in the department of state. He entered the diplomatic service as far back as 1884.

WASHINGTON, July 2. - For more than a month all pension certificates issued by the government have been held up in the pension bureau. The suspension ended Thursday when an immense batch of certificates was mailed to the different agencies. This terminates the operations of an order which, taking effect May 31 last, was designed to avoid increasing the existing deficiency in the pension appropriations by crediting the payments which would follow the issuance of these certificates to the new fiscal year instead of to the fiscal year ended Wednesday. The deficiency is said to be over $300,000. Between 12,000 and 15,000 of these certificates have accumulated since the order took effect and Thursday all those dated up to June 24 were mailed. Columbus, O., July 3.-A general strike of the United Mine Workers of America has been ordered for July 4 by the national executive board, whose headquarters are in this city, and also by the district presidents, as the result of a meeting held here June 24, 25 and

To the Mine Workers of the Country,

Fellow Miners: At the last annual convention of the United Mine Workers of America, held in the city of Columbus, O., January 12-16, 1897, it was determined that the scale of prices should be advanced to the following

Pennsylvania (Pittsburgh district), pick mining, 69 cents per ton; Ohio, 60 cents per ton; Indiana (bituminous), 60 cents per ton; Illinois (Grape Creek), 55 cents per ton. Machine mining to fore the Queen City Athletic club, Elbe paid three-fifths per ton of the price for pick mining, except in Indiana (bituminous) where the price shall be four-fifths per ton of the price paid for pick mining; other mining sections a corresponding increase in price that will place them on a relative basis.

It was further agreed that the time for enforcement of the scale be left with the national executive board and the district presidents to determine when it would be most opportune to put this scale into effect.

The document then urges unanimity and fidelity among the members. "The signs of the times," the paper says, "as pointed out by the press and by testimony of men versed in public affairs, are, that business is reviving, that an upward tendency in prices of all commodities is apparent. In the general business revival and industrial improvement which is earnestly proclaimed, we ought to share, and if we will be in conference ranges from two do not attempt to share we shall be to ten days, but the best opinion is false to ourselves and those dependent

The officers here say 375,000 men are nvolved as proposed strikers. So far as anything can be learned here from officials the call for the Pittsburgh meeting of miners on Saturday is to decide how the strike is to be conducted in that district. They have to consider plans to take care of the women and children during the strike. President Ratchford says this is the best time to settle the question of wages, as during the summer the men can make use of their little garden plots in obtaining subsistence. Some "I'd go myself gladly, lieutenant," he one's alive, else the Indians wouldn't be said, "but orders are orders, and a party of four or five would be surrounded and cut off and massacred before you fairly realized that an Indian was near you." Then Lambert had appealed to the Texans, and the captain had replied as above; and then, just when he was giving up in despair, a sergeant and two men, dust-covered and with horses in a lather of foam, rode furiously in from the Waco trail.

Five miles out, a wretched, jet of smoke and fire flashed out from half-demented creature hailed them from a clump of willows by a little stream. "You're too late, you fellers. They ain't anything left alive from the Paloma to the Caliente, except Indians. The country's alive with them. Good-by to your scalps if you venture over that ridge." And he pointed to the long, low line of bluffs that spanned the horizon to the northwest. One man stopped to question, but speedily came galloping on in pursuit. "He's scared out of his wits. He can't prove what he says," was the brief report to Lambert and the sergeant, now riding side by side at the head of the little column.

Just at one o'clock the foaming, panting horses were reined in, and the girths loosened, while Lambert, guided by the veteran Indian-fighter, crawled cautiously up the height in front of them. Half the men dismounted, were stationed with ready rifle or carbine where they could command every approach. Who could say whether Indians were not even then lurking in every ravine? A young Texan, following the road, as to scout the trail beyond. With drooping heads and heaving flanks the motley herd were huddled in a little swale to the right of the road, their holders eagerly watching the young leader and saying few words. Warily vain. Dolan reached and peered over the crest. They could see him pointing-could see both he and Lambert shading their eyes with their hands and staring away into space-could see Dolan suddenly clutch the officer's sleeve, and, crouching lower, point as though to some objects far out over the slopes beyond. Then down they came, eager, elastic, with gleaming eyes and glowing faces. "Mount, men, mount! There's a fight not five miles ahead!" sang out Dolan, and, swinging into saddle, with Lambert only a length in lead, struck spurs to his horse, the whole squad clattering at their heels. XVIII.

One soft, warm evening in early June quite a family party had gathered on the veranda of the old white homestead at Pass Christian. The air was rich with the fragrance of jasmine and magnolia; a great bunch of roses lay on the little table beside the reclining chair, where, propped up with pillows, Mrs. Walton was placidly enjoying the beauty of the moonlit scene and rapturously contemplating the stalwart form of her soldier son. It was too much-it was too soon -- to expect of a southern woman even so customary a thing as a change of mind, when that change involved a confession of interest and pride in the army blue, but the mother did not live in all the broad and sorrowing south whose soul would not have thrilled with pride and delight, even though hidden and unconfessed, in reading the ringing words with which in general orders a great union leader had published to his troops the story of the heroism, devotion, and soldierly skill with which Corporal Floyd Walton, Troop "X," Fourth cavalry, had conducted the defense of the passengers on the Concho stage, saving the lives of Brevet Lieut. Col. Sweet, who was shot early in the engagement, and of two civilians, and, though himself twice painfully wounded, maintaining the defense and inflicting severe loss upon an overwhelming force of hostile Indians, until finally relieved by the arrival of a detachment of troops and volunteers successfully and gallantly led by Lieut. I. N Lambert, —teenth infantry (wounded) and Sergt. Dolan, Fourth cavalry.

Sergt. Walton, promoted within the week, had been granted a month's fur-

ough as soon as able to travel, and with his arm in a sling had hastened homeward, where within the forty-eight hours succeeding his arrival he had time and time again to tell his story of that fearful day. They had got within five miles of the Caliente before discovering that only a smoldering ruin remained of the stage station. Hearing from fleeing settlers of the gaid Col. Sweet had decided to push for ward at top speed to reinforce the little party of defenders. The driver had urged the same course, and the two civilian passengers had naturally demurred. Then, when they found it too late, they turned and strove to retrace the road to Lampasas, were headed off at dawn, but fought a way to Witherell's old dug-out, the driver and two soldiers being killed, Col. Sweet and the corporal both shot in the attempt, and the stage abandoned and burned. And there in that stifling hole, without water for the wounded, they had fought off dash after dash of the Indians; but their ammunition was almost gone and only two men had any fight left in them, when they heard the welcoming crack of the rescuers' rifles. Even then the Indians hung about all the long afternoon and night, and Lambert got his painful wound in heading a little squad that ran the gauntlet to a neighboring spring for water for the fevered wounded. Of his own conduct Floyd had little to say. ("What else did they expect of a Walton?" was his mother's comment. "Is bravery so rare an at tribute in the federal army?") but he could not say enough about young Lambert. "We were fighting for our lives; we had to fight," he said; "but he risked his to fetch us water. I say that young fellow's a trump." And he flashed a significant glance at Katesie, manhood, had let that domestic cat out of the bag, and then, once started, had told more. Floyd Walton, under pledge road, lay two bloated, stiffening objects, of tangling his tongue, but Floyd could | they were seene foure hundred flying the stage mules. And when Floyd finally went to his room that night after the loving visit to his mother's bedside, he sat range shot at some gaudily-painted long at the open casement, gazing out warriors clustered about some object on the soft, still beauty of the moonlit half-way up the opposite slope. A pony | night, his heart touched and thrillled plunged and reared, and a yell of rage as it had not been for years, and his and defiance went up. Man after man, pride humbled. While he, wayward nearly all the little squad sprang to and forgetful of their needs, had left earth and opened brisk fire on every mother and sisters to struggle for Indian within rifle-shot, and every man | themselves, and had lost himself in vain for himself, following the general lead dreaming of a sweet-faced girl who he of Lambert and Dolan, strode forward | had early enough been warned was not up the gentle ascent towards a dingy for him-while he, reckless, selfish, mound, half earth, half logs, about a weak, had abandoned himself to drink quarter of a mile ahead of them, until and despair and then to the cold charpushed on cautiously to the point, so Dolan shouted right and left: "Cease ity of the world-it was an alien and an enemy, an uncouth soldier in the hated And, borne down the wind, faint and | blue, who had stood between the stricken and helpless ones at home and absosound of distant cheer, and the rescuers | lute want and privation. The good angel who ministered to them in their distress, even when stipulating that they should never know whence came the needed aid, and who finally became the "purchaser" of the desolate and ruined place, thereby supplying the means to make them so content and comfortable now, was that creature of strong contrasts, Capt. Close.

Not until long after midnight did Walton leave his seat by the open casement and seek his pillow; but there was another watcher whose vigil outlasted his. In the little batch of letters brought by Cousin Bart from the post office that evening was one which bore the Austin stamp and was addressed in Lambert's hand. Reading it hurriedly, Floyd had changed color and thrust it in his pocket, Katesie watching him with furtive eyes, yet never trusting herself to a question. It was Esther who eagerly demanded news of their absent friend. "Oh, yes, he's getting better," Floyd admitted, but then faltered. When was he coming? Oh, Lambert didn't say. The doctors probably wouldn't let him travel just yet. The letter was mainly about-other matters-about Col. Sweet, who didn't seem to be doing was on the way to join him. Didn't Lambert send any word or message? No. He probably wrote in a hurry. And that night Miss Katesie sat with her dimpled chin buried in her pretty round arms, gazing long out upon the flashing waters, a sad, silent and deeply troubled girl. There was something in that letter that concerned her; and how disagreeable she had been to Lambert! and she just knew it! and Floyd was mean and wouldn't teil her! At least this was the burden of her song when at two o'clock in the morning she threw herself sobbing into Esther's loving arms, and Esther, soothing and smiling softly to herselr, thought she could soon find means to comfort her.

That week brought other letters, and a telegram to Floyd, and he had business in New Orleans and must go over for a day. Lambert was coming on from Texas, and he'd fetch him back with him. Everybody could see he was feverishly impatient to get away, and a sad smile flickered about the moth er's pale lips as she laid her hand in blessing on his head. He went by the morning boat and hastened to the levee where the steamers of the Cromwell line came in from New York. He was there hours before the Crescent came plowing her way up the swollen and turbid river; and before she was sighted at English Turn, who should appear but Lieut. Waring and the general's aide-de-camp who had come to see him during his brief confinement under guard!

WOMEN AT THE HELM. Place in Russia Where the Housewives Run the Government.

Among the curiosities of the Russian dominions is a group of communes in the government of Smolensk, surrounding the convent of Besjukow, where not only do women vote, but where they practically do all the voting and office-

As the returns from agriculture are very meager in the district, and there are large towns not far away, the male inhabitants of the Besjukow neighborhood emigrate to these towns early in spring to find work, leaving few but women and children at home, and not coming home to attend to the little matter of voting.

Inasmuch as the women have to do all the farm work as well as the house. work in this singular community, it does not seem strange that they rather nsist upon holding the offices, and no assigning them to such old men as may be about. Furthermore, it is said that they have for a period of several years managed all the public affairs of the Besjukow district so well that the men are quite content to abandon the tedious work of government to them.

Sometimes, when the "head woman" of the joint communes is presiding over a public assembly of women to pass upon important financial and other concerns, certain of the men have been known to come home for the purpose of merely looking on and admiring the method of procedure-cr else of heartily felicitating themselves upon being rid of so bothersome a duty.-Youth's

Which Has Some Indications of Tragedy.

Mrs. Tabitha Jones lifted high her Connecticut nose, breathed deeply the balmy air of south Texas, and listened From the kitchen region, through the open window, came distinctly these words: "Now git down dar on dem coals, you debble, an' stay dar."

Mrs. Tabitha's Puritan blood wa aroused. "Hit's all erlong ob you e dinna's late, but I speck I don fix you now, you raskil." Had the black woman, in a fit of passion and carried away by atavistic savagery and cannibalism, sacrificed her own offspring? And Mrs. Tabitha's mind reverted to Aunt Cyn thia's small woolly prototype, which two days before had arrived along with Aunt Cynthia's clothes and other ef fects. Her sympathies had halted at this little creature when she saw it deposited on her kitchen floor, but now its humanity called to her.

With trembling courage she stepped quickly and softly to the kitchen and slowly advanced her head beyond the edge of the open door. The smell of burning flesh filled her nostrils. At the front of the stove stood Aunt Cynthia: in her hand, lifted threateningly was a large flesh fork; on her lips this final taunt: "Now I 'speck you gwine te behave yo'sef!" and she jabbed vigorously at something hidden from Mrs. Tabitha by the stove.

Looking up, the negress caught sigh of the pale, rigid face projected just beyond the jam of the door. She uttered a loud scream, dropped the fork and half fell against the kitchen table. An ashen hue settled over her dark face as she gazed at the apparently dissevered head, and it was not until Mrs. Tabitha finally presented her full figure at the doorway that Aunt Cynthia was able to speak.

"What done happen in de house, Miss Bithy? Is you seen a ghostie?" she gasped. Making a great effort to efficiently oppose her civilization to the barbarism confronting her, Mrs. Tabitha said, in a quavering voice: "Cynas well as they could wish. His wife thia, I know what you have done, and you'd ought not to done it."

Aunt Cynthia began to recover. "Lo'd Gowd, Miss Bithy, what's

" seen dat chicken walkin' roun' like he's los', Miss Bithy, so I dess ketch him an' cook him fur dinna," and she continued to apostrophize the guilty bird while she shook down fresh coals. With her other arm she tenderly supported the baby against her shoulder .-N. Y. Journal.

BEHIND THE PURDAH, INDIA. Veil of Dignity Which Shuts Women from the World. An Englishman, bent on mastering the mysteries of their code of worship, attended Hindoo debates where the orthodox and the advanced school met together in discussion. "Can you tell me," he inquired, at last, confused by the arguments and counter-arguments tossed like shuttlecocks from one to another, "of one single article of your creed which you all hold in common?"

"We all believe," one of them replied, "in the sanctity of a cow and in the depravity of a woman." As a rule, they act up to this article of belief, or rather they live down to it. Yet, once upon a time, even in India, there seems to have been a golden age for women. Their present social condition is traced to the Mohammedan invasion. The country was harassed by irruptions of Arabs and Persians from the year 1000 until it was conquered by Sultan Baber in 1525. The Moslems brought with them not only ravage and bloodshed, but many evils hitherto unknown in the country. The Hindoo homes were robbed of their women and girls to fill the harems, or zenanas, as they were called in India, and the Hindoos shut up their wives and daughters in order to protect them. Only the higher castes could do this effectually. Stern necessity required that the poorer girls and women should work and it offers degrees of liberty on a descending scale. The higher the caste the more complete the seclusion.

It is computed that at least 5,000,000 girls and women live behind the purdah, or curtain, metaphorically a veil of dignity, which shuts them off from the outer world. It is not from want of natural humanity that a zenana is the darkest part of the house and farthest away from the entrance into the street. A Hindoo is very religious; it is said that he even "sins religiously." His sacred book tells him that a woman must be protected; that she must not be allowed to look out of a window into the streets; that no man, except a near relation, must look on her face, and, if she offend, she may be corrected by "a repe, a whip or a cane."-London

This agreement seems to settle rivalries which at one time wore rather a threatening aspect.-Youth's Companion.

Coaching Through Kentucky.

THE removal of the toll-gates from the turnpikes in Kentucky during the past year-some removed by order of the courts and others chopped down at mid-night by bands of raiders—recalls memories of coaching and staging through Kentucky in ante-bellum days. The first MacAdamized road in the South was surveyed by order of the Secretary of War, from Zanesville, O., to Florence, Ala., and the work of building it was begun in 1829 at Maysville, and the road was extended to Lexington by private individuals, though the State of Kentucky paid $212,000—one-half of the entire cost of the road In 1830 Congress passed a bill appropriating $150,000 to aid the enterprise, but President Jackson vetoed the measure This turnpike, however, was called the National Road, and was used by the stage coaches in carrying mail, passengers and baggage and by private carriages conveying the Southern notables to the National

The iron mile-posts along the roadside still bear the inscription of Zanesville, Maysville, Lexington and Florence. It is told that once when President Jackson was passing over this road in his private carriage en route to Washington his driver made some inquiry regarding the direction at a point where two roads crossed, and was purposely sent the wrong way. The President's driver went several miles before the mistake was discovered, and Gen. Jackson was much annoyed and angered over the oc-currence. This was before Congress voted the appropriation to aid in building the National road.

The stage coaches of those days were capacious vehicles, carrying about twenty-five pieces of baggage and about two dozen passengers-twelve inside and twelve on top-the outside seats being ger who came to Kentucky to speak at a eagerly taken in summer that the trayfour and sometimes six spirited horses City and the Mammoth Caye before the of splendid size, which were changed cave was connected with the world by a

THE BABY'S WELFARE

To Be Healthy Two-Thirds of Its Life Should Be Spent in Sleep.

More than two-thirds of the life of a healthy baby should be passed in sleep. Therefore a wise mother is exceedingly careful in selcesting the material of her baby's bed. Probably the most unwholesome bed the wee, dainty bit of humanity can have is the little swinging bassinet of down, lace and ribbons. which French milliners prepare under the apparent impression that baby is a sort of toy to be dressed up for display and laid away when asleep like a French doll.

The best crib for a baby is not a swinging bassinet, or any swinging or rocking cradle, but a crib of liberal size, which stands firmly on its legs, and is large enough for the child until it is old enough to sleep in a regular bed. The pillow of the baby's bed should be a flat one of hair, not over two inches thick. This is not the conventional baby pillow of the shops. That is a doll-like affair of down, covered with linen cambric and edged with lace, and is a very dangerous pillow to use for two reasons. First, the brain of an infant is very sensitive and liable to congestion from over-excitement, indigestion or some slight cause, and the head should be kept cool, and should not be heated by a down pillow; secondly, the down used in the shops-unless the work is made to order-is always Arctic down. This is composed of the soft feathers stripped from the quills of the German goose. It is so penetrating that the fine particles will force themselves through the seams and the interstizes in the muslin, which is usually used to cover the pillow, or even through Bed ticking. These unwholesome particles floating in the air are then liable to be breathed by the sleeping infant

The best bed coverings for a baby are sheets of cambric or linen in sum- him much better than any trained family of three, sometimes serving as mer and soft blanket of pure California wool, which are as warm and light as down and much more wholesome, in winter. A silken comfortable of down is allowable if the mother can afford that silken-like down which the eider duck plucks from her breast to line the nest which she builds for her own ducklings in the Arctic snows. This soft, dun-colored down does not child, now three years old, was put in exist only between two women with float about, but clings together, so that it is safe to use it. The coverlet of the baby's bed may be of any daintyhued wash silk. This coverlet will protect the blankets as well as a heavier counterpane of cotten .- St. Louis Republic.

ASKED THE WRONG FATHER.

That One's Daughter Had Been Married for a Week and So He Said No.

He was a frequent visitor at the home of the young lady. He favorably impressed her sisters and mother by his dignified behavior and sensible conversation. He would probably have had the same gratifying effect upon her father, but as the latter was completely immersed in his business he was at home very little of the time, and when he was he generally betook himself to his study in a quiet corner of the house. The young man had a dim recollection of being introduced to him once, and speaking a word or so, but since that time had not seen him at all. However, this didn't bother him much, and his love affair came to a focus rapidly.

When he asked the young lady to become his wife she referred him to her father.

"I'll see him to-morrow, dear," he replied.

"No, I don't think you can," she answered; "he's going out of town on a long business trip to-morrow evening, and so will not be here when you come.' "By Jove, then," responded the young man, "I'll drop in on him at the of

The next day he turned up at the place of business of his idol's father He knew he was president of the concern. He made his way into the presi dent's office and there confronted a very busy gentleman indeed. Asking for a moment of the latter's time, he said: "I have come to ask you for your daugh-

Without waiting for an explanation the horror-stricken suitor rushed from the building. He hailed a cab and drove madly to the young lady's home.

"What-what does it all mean?" he gasped, as soon as he saw her. "Speak! What does it mean? I have just seen your father at his office, and he says that you were married a week ago!" "Why, Henry," she ejaculated, in a tone of astonishment, "my father? Why, he left for New York last night!" A little further conversation revealed the fact that Henry had been talking

Devited Eggs.

Boil six eggs ten minutes, remove and lay them in cold water, in the meantime, place a saucepan with one tablespoonful butter and one tablespoonful fine chopped onions over the fire; cook three minutes without browning the onions; then add one tablespoonful flour, stir and cook two minutes, add 11/2 cupfuls milk, half teaspoonful salt, cee-quarter teaspoonful white pepper, one-half teaspoonful English mustard, remove the shells from the eggs, cut the eggs into small pieces, add them to the sauce, stir a few minutes, add one teaspoonful fine chopped parsley, divide the preparation into six table shells, fry two tablespoonfuls bread crumbs in a little butter light brown, sprinkle them over the shells, place them in a tin pan and bake five minutes in a hot oven .--Brooklyn Eagle.

John Starnes Took to the Woods During the War and Is There Still.

Thirty-five years ago John Starnes lived near Blacksburg, York county, and only a few miles from the battlefields of Cowpens and King's mountain, where the Americans whipped the British. The proximity of the battlefields did not inspire a warlike spirit in the breast of Starnes. During the war the conscription officers cast covetous eyes on the mountaineer's stalwart frame, and Starnes took to the woods. They searched for him, but Starnes was a better runner than a fighter, and he kept out of the way, out of the war, and in the woods. He had an old musket and a supply of ammunition, and fare in the woods was better than in the town. the light fail. In all these years I always put the lamps in order in the morning, and I lit them at sunset. Those old lamps -as they were when my father lived on Matinicus rock-are so thoroughly impressed on my memory that even now I often dream of them. There were 14 lamps and 14 reflectors. When I dream of them it always seems to me that I have been away a long while, and I am trying to get back in time to light the lamps. Then I am half way between Matinicus and White Head, and hurrying toward the rock to light the lamps there before sunset. Sometimes I walk on the water, sometimes I am in a boat, and sometimes I seem going in the air—I must always see the lights burning in both places before I wake. I always go through the same scenes in cleaning the lamps and lighting them, and I feel a great deal more worried in my dreams than when am awake.

I wonder if the care of the lighthouse will follow my soul after it has left this worn-out body? If I ever have a gravestone, I would like it to be in the form of a lighthouse or beacon.-Gustav Kobbe, in Century.

Three minutes! Aye, the fateful clock, 7ith measured movement seems to moo My hopes and prayers, And what I hope I do not know: I feel my spirits sinking low With weight of fears.

Three minutes! Will no power restrain The hand that counts them, and again My peace restore? I plead in vain; they will not stay; They pass, alas! away, away, Forevermore!

Three nainutes, and the end will be! I'll vainly look that face to see I now behold. Yet I these moments' memories will. Deep in my heart, though good or ill, Fore'er enfold.

I had not sat beside her for five minutes before I found that she was in a highly-strung condition, her eyes were so bright, her skin dry, and her pulses quivering with their rapid beats. After a few commonplaces, I said:

"What is it, Marta? What is the matter to-day? You have no new painno fresh trouble?"

"No monsieur," she answered, "it is that I cannot still my thoughts-to-day is the anniversary-" and she stopped.

Her beautiful gray eyes were full of tears, and she was trying hard to exercise self control.

"Tell me," I said, "all about the ana strange one indeed! I was in search as I touched his face. to Riviera in search of her. I had been in the Hospital of St. Jacques to see a man whom I thought could give me information, and it occurred to me suddenly that the dress of a Sister of Mercy would be a good disguise. I left Paris in time to reach Marseilles early one lovely morning, and going to the house of a friend I changed my clothes, and scarcely recognized myself as I looked in the great glass at the railway station. No hair could be seen, and the large collar and winged cap gave me quite a different expression. I had bought a smal bag, exactly like those the sisters carry, to hold the things I needed, and I had my papers sewn inside a dress I wore. I was young then and the cases that interested me occupied me so entirely that I became sleepless and suffered at times from sudden faintness, which would be succeeded by violent ment, his arms were tangled in the cloak, troubles I carried always a bottle of ether and a tiny phial of chloroform, both wrapped for safety in a square of jewelers' cotton."

"Ah, I see!" interrupted I. "Your forger found them, and used them to stupefy you!"

"Pardon, monsieur," she returned, "my tale is better than that! At Marseilles I got into a compartment whence several people descended, and a man, who was its sole occupant, tried to prevent my entrance, as if unconsciously; but I looked sharply at him and got in. He then placed his arms on the doorway and blocked the window until the train left the station; then he threw himself on the seat in the corner farthest from me on the opposite side, and flung off the large cloak he was wearing.

"To my surprise and horror, I saw he was partly dressed as a woman, and he took from beneath the seat a bag like those in which workmen carry their tools and quietly continued his toilet. Naturally I watched him. He was small and slight, and very fair, and when he quicken too much. took off his coat and waistcoat, collar and tie, I saw a great scar beneath the left ear going right under his chin.

"I knew him instantly; he was Druette, the man whom I believed safely in prison at Toulon, who was the most ingenious and cruel of a gang of thieves who had infested Paris for three years and who had been cleverly captured three months before. The captor had received 5,000 francs, and now he was door, and I jumped up and rushed from at large again, and here before me in the carriage; and in my excitement, I tatoes peeled, sliced and dried like apthis narrow compartment. He stopped his toilet, and said to me, in the quiet, his characteristics:

"After I had finished dressing him, I went back to my seat, and then I laughed. He looked furious, and asked me why I was such a fool. I said his face was a fair woman's, and his hair a dark one's, and he would be noticed directly. He scowled at me, and said 'Idiot!' but at the same time he brought from his bag a bottle of dye and a brush, and began to color his hands. I caught up his cloak and put it around him, as a barber puts his cloth, and, telling him to shut his eyes, I began to paint the lids The next moment I transferred the brush to my left hand, and with my right I took out the stopper from the chloroform bottle, and poured half the contents on the wadding that had been around it. Happily, it was a large piece, and, dropping the brush, I pressed it suddenly over his nose and mouth, and saturated it with the ether.

"The suddenness of the action took him so much by surprise that for one secondhe was quite quiet, and I dashed the bottle of dye right at his eyes as he opened them, still pressing the pad over his nose. He was blinded for the mopains in my head. To alleviate these and if only the chloroform did its work. and I could hold him down! The agony of those few seconds will never be effaced. He tried to reach the knife, monsieur, but I kicked it off the seat away, just as I perceived that his frantic efforts were becoming fainter; and one more violent struggle on my part kept the wadding in its place, and he succumbed; his head dropped back, and his arms fell powerlessly beside

"I had no knowledge of the action of anaesthetics, and now a dread possessed me lest I had killed him. I remembered having heard somewhere that slight people of quick brains were specially susceptible to these influences, and I thought perhaps I should only take a dead body into Toulon.

"He looked so ghastly with the streaks of paint on his livid skin. I placed my hand on his heart, and felt his wristmost thankful was I to find a pulsation. As I have always hauled a great deal of feed each winter I detach the sides, place it on a sled and make a very good feed rack of it, upon which to haul feed from the field to the barn.

My rack is all made of red elm and painted with two coats of oil and Venetian red, which makes quite a durable paint for farm tools, and better by adding a few pounds of white lead. A rack during the quarter of an hour of the of this kind will be found very convenient upon the farm, and I assure evaporated. you I would not trade it and go back to "At length the train slackened, and Brown, in Ohio Farmer.

The potatoes are peeled and sliced by machinery, soaked two minutes in strong brine, drained and dried at a temperature of about 194 degrees. Before using the slices are soaked from 12 to 15 hours, and then have all the freshness and flavor of new potatoes.

New Food for Cattle.

A long-continued diet of molasses has been found injurious to cattle, but Louisiana sugar planters have discovered that "black strap" mixed in proper proportions with corn, hay or oats forms a good food for fattening cattle. There is already a great demand for it in Texas, and it is expected that the western states will soon consume quantities of what has been considered the nearly useless portion of the sugar-cane prod-

Long observation convinces us that corn fed to laying hens makes the yolks a richer yellow and gives consistency to the whites of eggs. Eggs laid by a halffed hen have whites that are thin and watery and the yolks are often pale and thin, falling flat when the egg is broken instead of standing up in the shape of a half globe.

HINTS FOR BEEKEEPERS.

Combine bee keeping with fruit Bees consume a large quantity of honey while they are raising brood.

In hiving swarms all washes for the hive are useless. All that is necessary is to have the hive clean and sweet.

The queens of the Italians are decidedly more prolific. This is in part due to the greater activity of the workers. A young queen just emerging from the cell can always be safely given to the colony after destroying the old

GAVE THE WAITER HIS FEE

An Irascible Man's Ignorance of the Law Costs Him a Liberal Tip.

The globular and florid old gentleman, as he sat down at the table, pulled a dollar bill out of his pocket, deliberately tore it in two, handed one piece to the waiter, replaced the other in his pocket, and said:

"Waiter, if I am satisfied, you get the other half. Do you understand?" "Yes, sir," replied the functionary, and became as assiduous as a mother with her

But for some inexplicable reason the old gentleman grew more and more dissatisfied as his meal progressed, until, as he arose from the table, he simply scowled angrily at the expectant waiter. "Excuse me, sir, but-" the waiter insinuated obsequiously.

"Naw," snarled the old fellow in reply. "Oh, yes; I think you will," observed the waiter, his backbone visibly stiffening. "Don't you be impudent, young man," advised the old fellow, threateningly.
"Don't you be a chump," advised the waiter, contemptuously.

"Why, why, wh—at?" screamed the old gentleman, swelling like an enraged turkey cock. "I'll-I'll report you for insolence, you-you villain!

"I don't think you will," retorted the waiter, calmly and firmly. "Come, hand over the other half of this bill. I need a dollar to go to the theater.'

'Explain yourself, you rascal," demanded the old fellow, a great and portentous calm enveloping him. "Now, what does this

"It means at this minute you are a lawbreaker, sir," replied the waiter, suavely.
"Mutilating the currency is a crime, and you have mutilated a dollar bill. Therefore, unless I get the dollar you'll be pinched.

As the waiter pocketed the dollar, he smiled.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Over a Ton a Day.

Last year 425 tons of steel were used by the Winchester Repeating Arms Co., New Haven, Ct., in the manufacture of rifles and shot guns. This enormous amount represents a consumption of over a ton a day. This information may surprise people who are not familiar with the great demand for Winchester guns, but it will not anyone who has used a Winchester, for they appreciate the excellence and popularity of this make of gun. Winchester guns and Winchester ammunition are unequalled for their many points of superiority. Uniformity and reliability are watchwords with the Winchesters and the results their guns and ammunition give show the great care taken in manufacturing them. Send for a large illustrated catalogue free.
